HAS CONTROL FOR AIRPLANE

Ogden Man's Invention to Be Given Trials Before Government Experts

Harnessing gravity as a component part of an airplane, R. E. Mitton, 23 years old, of Ogden, has invented a controlling system which he claims will make an airplane fool-proof.

Mitton will depart within the next ten days for March Field, California, to install his apparatus on a DeHavilland plane for the purpose of demonstrating his device before government flying experts.

The apparatus which Mitton has perfected is nothing more than a seat and a pendulum mounted on the "joy stick" of an airplane. The seat, mounted on a base which allows it to swing in every direction, displaces the usual three-stick control. A heavy pendulum arrangement, mounted beneath the seat, keeps the controls in place for level flying at such times as the operator is not directing the plane by tilting the seat at various angles.

The principle involved is practically the same as that of riding a bicycle by changing the center of gravity, the plane swings to conform with the new center. When not held out of position, gravity keeps the pendulum directly beneath the driver, and at the point of equilibrium of the plane. In event that the engine stops, the nose of the plane, this apparatus, acts as a gentle slant, the seat determining the degree of angle at which the plane descends.

Mitton and W. L. Brawley are joint inventors of the controller. Several local aviators have seen the apparatus, and Mitton states, are convinced of its practicability. The Utah Aero club has given it the endorsement of that organization, and Lieutenant Colonel Dickson, who was recently in Ogden, was favorably impressed with the idea. It is said, and will be shown to the inventor in giving a demonstration before the government.

Steps are now under way to form an incorporation for the purpose of manufacturing and disposing of articles turned out under this, and other inventions of Mitton, all of which are protected by patents. Mitton will be president of the corporation. Brawley will be first vice president and other officers will be as follows: H. L. Horspool, secretary; Roy J. Douglas, secretary and treasurer; G. H. Abbott, general manager.

The new controlling apparatus will be of no use in trick flying, he claims, but in event of the machine going into a tail-spin, or a nose dive, will set the machine right.

Mitton has completed a design for an airplane which, he said, this morning, will probably be manufactured in this city.

VESSELS CRASH IN

SCREEN PRODUCTION OF "THE SEA WOLF"

Picturization of Jack London's Famous Novel Is George Melford Production.

Some idea of the large and realistic scale upon which Jack London's famous story, "The Sea Wolf," has been made into a motion picture may be gathered from the fact that Producer George Melford hired a ferry-boat and bought a big schooner outright in order to stage the collision between the two ships in San Francisco bay. The schooner was completely demolished in the crash. The company which made the film spent a month along the San Francisco waterfront making the exterior.

However, not all the episodes were "shot" so near the shore, as the players made frequent trips through the Golden Gate into the open sea. A memorable day which they spent some fifty miles from shore during a severe gale in a not too worthy fishing boat while the camera registered the destruction being wrought all around them by the wind and storm will live long in the minds of North Bay, who plays "Wolf Larsen," Mabel Julienne Scott, Tom Forman, and the other members of the cast. But Director Melford expressed the conviction of all when he declared, "I want no millpond 'Wolf'."

And so "The Sea Wolf," which will be the attraction at the Alhambra theatre tonight, is declared to be a production that would delight the sea-loving heart of Jack London himself were living. Such a feat is every respect the brute-philosopher, hero-villain "Wolf." The film is Paramount Art Craft and is striking in the extreme.

Contains from two to four per cent of caffeine.

SET STANDARDS FOR APPLE CROP

Farm Bureau and Crops Officials Meet With State Officer at Salt Lake

Proposal to restrict standardization of fruits and vegetables for the present year to apples, and that it be extended to cherries, peaches, apricots and potatoes next year were made Friday by special committee representing farm bureaus and fruit commission men of the state. The recommendations will go to the state crop pest commission for action, that body having the authority to put in the standardization of the fruits mentioned.

Harold R. Hagan, state crop pest inspector, called a meeting last Saturday at which time he called yesterday's meeting and asked that presidents of farm bureaus from Boxelder, Weber, Davis, Salt Lake and Utah counties serve on the committee with W. M. Roylance of Provo, and J. O. White of Salt Lake, who represented the buyers.

Only four were present yesterday. The committee decided first to recommend that standardization be limited to apples for this year, the scope to be increased in future years. The committee also adopted specifications for first, second, third and combined grades of apples and of cuts. The body also adopted a resolution asking the commission to submit to the next legislature a law providing for the standardization of commercial potatoes into two grades, in conformity with the United States government specifications.

With regard to apples, the specifications recommended provide that apples be labeled as first grade shall be of uniform size and color, and shall be free from blemishes of any kind. The color required varies with the variety, as does the size.

Apples of the second grade, under the proposed specifications, may vary somewhat in size and may also be slightly off color. A few minor blemishes are permissible, their nature being specified. These are such as will not interfere with the food qualities of the apples, although they may mar the appearance of the pack somewhat.

In apples of the third grade more and larger blemishes are permitted, and the fruit may vary markedly in size.

Apples of combined grades are those of the first, second and third grades, packed together in usually one standard container.

All these four grades of apples must be perfectly free from visible signs of insect pests or diseases. Culls may include wormy or diseased fruit or fruit otherwise unsound and unfit for human consumption. They may be sorted into two classes, one of which is suitable for sale to licensed cider mills and fruit-by-product factories, while the others may be used only for stock feed.

The committee expressed the desire that the regulations shall apply to all imported apples, as well as to apples grown in Utah.

The crops and pest commission will hold a special meeting Saturday at 1:30 o'clock to consider the committee's recommendations.

Weber Stake to Hold Meeting at Tabernacle

Quarterly conference of the Weber stake will be held in the Ogden tabernacle today with sessions at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Two representatives of the general church authorities will be present and deliver addresses. Owing to the organ being under repairs and the tabernacle choir taking a vacation, congregational singing will be a feature of the conference.

It is announced that the tabernacle will be well ventilated and the members of the stake need not fear the warm weather. All members of the stake are urged to be present.

SAYS AUTO TO BE CONFISCATED

David Judkins to Lose Car If Found Guilty of Violating Liquor Laws

That the alleged discovery of one gallon of wine in an automobile belonging to the state if Judkins is found guilty. This is in addition to the fine and probable imprisonment which will come to Judkins, who is alleged to have been caught with liquor in his possession.

Commissioner Ward declared that trafficking in liquor in Ogden must stop and the police officers have been turned loose to see that the law is upheld in every detail. The officers, he said, are now planning a campaign which will result in the combining of the city and that numerous arrests will come soon.

Roads Bad Near Park Tourists Tell Mayor

Tourists reaching Ogden this morning told of poor road conditions in Idaho on the way to Yellowstone park and declared that a 100-mile stretch near Ashton, was almost impassable.

This stretch, they told Mayor Frank Francis, whom they visited, has been responsible for damage to many cars and tourists are held up awaiting repairs. The road is several inches deep with dust, they said, and the dust hides deep ruts that places a great strain upon a motor car.

The tourists told Mayor Francis they were delighted when they crossed into Utah and found good highways. They said they had never appreciated what good roads really meant until they rolled along on the Utah paved roads, after leaving the rough highways behind.

Besides the birds, there are numerous insects which attack the fruit, wood and leaves of the olive tree.
